A SHAKE OF THE HAND

AND A WISH FOR A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

RECEPTION AT THE WHITE HOUSE

McKee Does the Honors of the Occasion

The Brilliant Uniforms of the Army and the Navy.

Washington, January 1.—The new year began with a cold, disagreeable rain which continued throughout the day, which naturally had a depressing effect upon those who had prepared the programme of visitors. The white house was, as usual, the central point of interest. There have been, of course, many similar occasions at that historic maniston, but it is showiest feature of the day, they being in full dress uniform and resplendent with brass buttons, bright epaluttes, gaudy sashes, gold lace, etc. Major General Schofield headed the army, Kear Admiral Jokell the navy. Admiral Porter did not attend on account of bad health.

It was now 12 o'clock, and the reception before has there been at the white house reception such a large and distinguished repre sentation from other nations of the world. This was due to the presence, in addition to the regular diplomatic and consular officers of other countries, of delegates to the international Maritime congress, and delegates to the pan-American conference. The presthese distinguished foreigners was raturally the leading feature of the reception. The mansion had been specially prepared for the eccasion, and when the reception was at its height it presented A SPECTACLE OF UNUSIAL BEAUTY and splendor. The ful lMarine band, in gay uniforms of red and blue, was stationed in the westibule just inside the main entrance, and with but few intermissions played lively and inspiring music from the time the president took his stand at the head of the receiving line in the blue parlor until the last of the callers had taken his departure, a period of a title over three hours.

The interior decorations, while not elaborate, were very effective, consisting of a liberal distribution of tropical and flowering plants in distribution of tropical and flowering plants in all places where they could be displayed to advantage. The general effect was also heightened by the brilliant illumination of all the parlors, the bright gas light being reflected from myriads of iridescent crystals and numerous French plate glass mirrors. Tall India rubber plants, mingled with delicate ferns and ivy, lined the main corridor and filled every alcove. In the east room, opposite the corridor, was a huge bank of tropical plants, tastefully arranged, reaching nearly to the ceiling, and the many broad mantels of the east room were ornamented with the ceiling, and the many broad mantels of the east room were ornamented with choice plants in gilded pots. The red and green parlors also contained a profusion of plants and flowers, but the blue parlor, where the reception was actually held, gave indica-tion of having received the greatest share of attention from the decorators. In this room, in addition to a liberal display of rare plants, ferns and smilax, there was a profusion of cut flowers, including roses, poinseltas, tulips, ferns and smilax, there was a profusion of cut flowers, including roses, poinseltas, tulips, camelias, hyacinths, azaleas, carnations, japonicas and begonias. These were banked in bright designs upon the mantels, and served to form a huge bouquet on the central divan. The large doorway, at the back of the room, was concealed by a number of tall, large-leaved plants, which formed a beautiful background for the receiving party.

THE RECEPTION. The reception proper did not begin until 11 o'clock, but the vice-president and members of the cabinet, with ladies of their families, arrived shortly before that hour, and were arrived shortly before that hour, and were shown directly into the president's presence in the private parlor up stairs. When e graphing was in readiness the president and party descended to the blue parlor and took their places in line. The Marine band signalled their arrival with the extremely familiar air, "Hail to the Chief." The party entered the blue room in the following order: Colonel Ernest, United States army, and Lieutenant Parker, United States navy; the president and Mrs. McKee, the vice-president and Mrs. Mrs. McKee, the vice-president and Mrs. Morton, the secretary of state and Mrs. S. B. Elkius, the secretary of the treasury and Mrs. Windom, the attorney-general and Mrs. Miller, the postmaster-general and Mrs. Wanamaker, the secretary of the interior and Mrs. Noble, the secretary of agriculture and Mrs. Noble, the secretary of agriculture and Mrs. Rusk, and the secretary of war and Mrs.

Rusk, and the secretary of war and Mrs.
Logan.
Colonel Ernest, of the army, and Lieutenant Parker of the navy, acted as masters of ceremonies, the former making presentations to the president, (except in case of special presentations,) and the latter repeating the introductions to Mrs. McKee, who occupied a place near the president.
Other ladies assisting were ranged next in order as follows: Mrs. Morton, Mrs. Windom, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Wanamaker, Mrs. Tracy, Mrs. Noble and Mrs. Rusk.

The TOILETS OF THE LADIES

were singularly rich and becoming, and were greatly admired on all sides. Mrs. McKee greatly admired on all sides. Mrs. McKee wore a beautiful dress of white armere silk with square neck and full elbow sleeves made a la Martha Washington, the front being embroidered in white "Mouzeleing de Sole." Her ornaments were diamonds. Her manner was gracious and cordial and, added to her delicate beauty, created a decidedly forcible im pression. She carried a large bouquet of Cathe. rine Mermot roses, and followed the example of her mother in acknowledging the general introduction of a how instead of shaking hands.

The president, however, adhered to the precedent, and shook hands with each one of the thousands who called. Back of the receiving line were a large number of specially invited friends, including nearly all debutants of the season. Among them were the following named ladies: Mrs. Harlan, Mrs. Logan, Mrs. Hale, Mrs. Gorman, Mrs. McMillan, Mrs. Hiscock, Mrs. Platt, Mrs. Pugh, Mrs. Quay, Mrs. Cockrell, Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Carlisle, Mrs. Burrows, Mrs. Springer, Mrs. Lodge, Mrs. Butterworth, the Misses Blaine and guests, Miss Wanamaker, the Misses Halstead, the Misses Windom, the Misses Ernest, Mrs. Clover, Miss Miller, Miss Rusk, Mrs. Drum, Mrs. Ernest, Mrs. J. V. L. Findlay, Mrs. R. M. G. Brown, Mrs. William S. Harris, Miss Mand Gouverneur, Mrs. S. B. Elkins, Mrs. Chas. Emory Smith, of Philadelphia; Miss Shephard, of New York: Miss Grace Davis, Miss Halford and Mrs. Wilmer, Miss Tracey, Mrs. and Mrs. Carey, Miss Proctor, Mrs. Ent Blaine.

THE DIPLOMATIC CORPS.

THE DIPLOMATIC CORPS.

The members of the diplomatic corps were received. They were presented by Sectary Blaine, assisted by other officials of the ate department. All were in full court costume and added a brilliant coloring to the content of the corps. miral Porter did not attend on account of bad health.

It was now 12 o'clock, and the reception became all the more general in its character. Indeed its callers became so numerous and followed each other so closely that the president was compelled to restrict his welcome to a single shake of the hand and a simple 'glad to see you.'' Those received in this manner included officers of the Smithsonian institution, civil service commissioners, interstate commerce commissioners, assistant secretaries and chief officers of the various departments, and the faculty of the Columbian institution for the deaf and dumb. The next section of callers was headed by a few survivors of the war of 1846, closely followed by a large representation of grand army men and a small body of gray-haired, venerable looking men known as the Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia.

District of Columbia.

THE RECEPTION OF THE PUBLIC generally was next in order, and the gates to the grounds, which had been closed up to this time except to a privileged few, were thrown open, and the crowd thronged rapidly into the mansion. The attendance was naturally smaller than usual on account of the inclement weather, but thousands of people braved the rain and kept their places in line, which moved slowly into the mansion, the interior of which was more cheerful and brighter by the contrast with the gloom and moisture of the outside. The callers protected themselves, as best they could, with umbrellas and formed a line, two abreast, extending up Pennsylvania line, two abreast, extending up Pennsylvania avenue to Seventeenth street. The reception lasted until 2 o'clock, and it is estimated that during that time the president shock hands with nearly 6,000 people.

When it was over the president invited the ladies who assisted him and a number of other to join him in a lunch, which he had prepared expressly for them in the hallway upstairs.

As is well known, Mrs. Harrison's absence As is well known, Mrs. Harrison's apsence was due to the recent death of her sister, and it was at her request that her daughter, Mrs. Mckee, assumed the responsibilities of hostess on this occasion. Mrs. Blaine was unable to assist by reason of the recent death of her sister. Mrs. Proctor is in bad health and was also mable to be present.

A CHANGE OF FORCE.

The Philadelphia Press Shuts Its Door or Union Men.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., J. Duary 1.—The following notice was posted in the composing room of the Press here last night:

Philadelphia Press, Business Manager's Office, Philadelphia, December 51st, 1889.—Owing to the vote of members of the Press chapel, showing their vote of members of the Press chapel, showing their determination to violate the agreement under which they came into this office; and also the subquent agreement made by a representative committee on April 4th, 1889, wherein said committee stated: "We do not propose to make any alteration in our scale of prices, except with the consent of the employers." Therefore, in view of the threatening attitude tending to violate this statement, as well as the uncertain and evasive answer of the president of the executive council of the International Typographical union, we have been obliged to contract with the National Printers' Protective fraternity for a new and permanent force.

National Printers Protective fraterinty for a new permanent force.

The Press will retain in its employ any of its present force who see fit to remain under the new organization and will guarantee permanent employment to all good men.

Members of this chapel who see fit not to remain in the employ of the Press, will please call at the cashier's desk any time tomorrow after 10 o'clock for a full settlement of wages.

R. J. Cook, Manager."

Meetings of typographical union No. 2, and of the Press chapel were held today, but nothing of public interest, so it is declared by those present, was done. All of the locked-out printers of the Press were today placed on the strike benefit list—$7 per week—until they obtain employment, elsewhere. It is said that the managers of the Press have secured nearly a full complement of men, and that they will experience little or no difficulty in issuing the paper as usual.

they will experience inter or no dimethly in issuing the paper as usual.

Jones, Plank and others of executive council of the international typographical union are expected to return to this city tomorrow, and as they have complete jurisdiction in the matter of the general demand for an increased rate for composition, nothing will be done before their arrival.

DEACON WHITE IN NASHVILLE.

A Celebrated New York Financier Seeking

NASHVILLE, Tenn., January 1.—[Special.]—Deacon White is in town. Who is Deacon White? One of the famous bankers of New York, Wall street manipulators and all-round financiers of the metropolis, whose name at one time or another has been in every paper in the United States. He is the guest of Mr. William M. Duncan, vice-president of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Raliroad company. the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company. The deacon is a member of the party of officers and directors of that company which came south several days ago to inspect the property and visit the mineral belt. President Platt and General Alger have gone to New Orleans. Mr. White dresses very plainly, though neatly, and would impress one as a sober-sided merchant of the old type. A black felt hat pulled well down over the head is one of the deacon's characteristics of attire. He talked pleasantly of the south. He praised its resources, and propiesied great things for it. He emphasized the fact that morthern capital was seeking southern coal and iron and that he found southern pig iron selling in eastern markets as against the produce of the east. The deacon had evidently been pleased with what he saw below the Ohio. The afternoon he spent at Bellemeade.

Of the Slaves Who Happened to Live Within

NASHVILLE, Tenn., January 1 .- [Special.]-Today's celebration of the emancipation of the slaves by the colored people brings to mind the fact that the negroes in Tennessee were not emanci-pated by Mr. Lincoln, and were not included in his ation of January 1, 1863, which is to be proclamation of January 1, 1863, which is to be celebrated.

In his proclamation freeling the slaves, — ent Lincoin excepted the slaves in the state of Tennessee, and included only the slaves in the states of Arkansas, Texas, Louislana, with a few parishes excepted, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina and Virginia. The slaves in Tennessee were not freed by Mr. Lincoin on January 1, 1863, or at any other time. They were emancipated by the state of Tennessee in 1865, and before the adoption of the United States. The negroes were enfranchised by the state of Tennessee before the adoption of the fifteenth amendment to the constitution. Thus, it will be seen, that emancipation and negro suffrage in Tennessee were granted by the state. Mr. Lincoln, in his proclamation, not only did not free the negroes in Tennessee, but by excepting them, kept them longer in slavery.

Emancipation Day in Charleston CHARLESTON, S. C., January I.— [Special.]—
The colored people celebrated emancipation day here with a street parade and speech-making. The cration of the day was delivered by Rev. I. S. Lee, a prominent colored minister.

DANVILLE, Va., January I.—Sales of new eaf tobheco in this market for the past three months was 8,437,442 pounds, an increase over the same period of the previous year of 4,837,532 pounds. Output manufactured tobacco for the year 1889 was 7,52,854 pounds, an increase over the previous year of 2,251,771 pounds. Sales of Leaf Tobacco.

RICHMOND, Va., January 1.—[Special.]—Governor Philip Watkins McKinney was inaugurated at the Virginia capital today. This marks a change from one democratic administration to another. While it is thought that Governor Fitzhugh Lee has made some mistakes during the four years he has been in office, he has made himself beloved by the people, and his rule is pronounced by the Dispatch a golden one.

The advent of Governor McKinney is a nota ble one. He has recovered much of the flesh and treshness he lost in the campaign, and he goes into office a fine specimen of Virginia

The inaugural was a great one in the hous of delegates. If the governor had had his way he would have been sworn in in his own county of Prince Edward by the judge of the superior court, according to the ancient custom of the commonwealth, but defering to the wishes of the general assembly he was inaugurated in its presence.

GOVERNOR M'KINNEY'S LIFE

has been an active one, and his career an all-

Before he was twenty-two years of age he was sent to the legislature from his native county. He entered the confederate army as captain of cavalry, and, until incapacitated by a bullet wound, served his country with distinction. His life served his country with distinction. His has been one of rare beauty in its moral and temperate tone, and is complete. In all his life Captain McKinney has never profanely sworn an oath, taken a chew of tobacco, or smoked, and he is exceedingly temperate in the use of licence.

Captain McKinney has been twice married. WHO WILL IT BE

That Will Step Into Senator Payne's

COLUMBUS, O., January 1.—The Ohio legislature will convene next Monday. The body is democratic in both branches. A caucus to name candidates for organization will be held this week. One of the most important duties of the legislature will be the selection of a United States senator to succeed Henry Payne. The leading candidates are Calvin S. Lima: John H. Thomas, of Springfield, and John A. McMahon, of Dayton. Among others whose name have been mentioned, are L. F. Hunt, C. W. Baker, James E. Neal, L. L. Neal, George T. Seney, John Warwick, John W. Bookwalter, J. H. Outhwaite, L. F. Pow ell, and others whose names are recognized as being up for complimentary purposes. A chance of being in line should the caucus be unable to agree upon either of the leading can-didates. Thomas, with a good force of workers, has been here for a couple of days, to meet members-elect who are coming in.

WORKING AMONG THE MEMBERS. Only a small per cent of the members have arrived, but they are coming on every train. The managers for Brice have been here for several days, looking after his interests, and they profess the confidence and belief that they will be able to nominate on the second ballot after the respective members have complimented their local candidates, so far as hey have any. Mr. Brice, it is reported, will arrive tonight or tomorrow, and take personal charge of his canvass. Forty votes will be required in the caucus to nominate. The Thomas managers claim they will show a strength of thirty on the first bal-lot, and will gain steadily till their man is nominated. They give no de-tail figures for these claims, and the Brice managers consider them ridiculous. McMa-hon has not ordered headquarters, but is expected here tomorrow. The objections so far urged against Brice are that he is not a resident of Ohio and is a millionaire. The non resident objection has been answered by the affidavits of business associates in New York. and the millionaire theory is not being urged, as it effects each of the leading candidate equally. Thomas stated tonight that he thought he was gaining ground in the estima-tion of the people of Ohio.

The General Manager Has Some Curious

Views.

CHARLESTON, S. C., January 1.—[Special.]—
The air is full with rumors of trouble among the employes of the South Carolina railway. One rumor is to the effect that twenty-six conductors are on their way here from Pittsburg. The story goes that the new general manager thinks that the present conductors know too many people, and he thinks that the receipts of the road of pasenger traffic will be increased by getting conducand he thinks that the receipts of the road of pas-senger traffic will be increased by getting conduc-turs who are not so well known as the present force. It is said that under the old regime the rail-way hauled more dead head than pay passengers. There are also rumors of coming wholesale changes in the mechanical departments. These are, of course, only rumors, but they cause a good deal of uneasi-ness in railroad circles.

The Effect of a Brick Flue.

Nashville, Tenn., January 1.—[Special.]—
A tail brick flue, extending above the seventh story of Baxter court, but not tied to the building, fell a few minutes after two o'clock this afternoon, and crushed in the roof of the Banner office, doing several hundred dollars' worth of damage, and destroying considerable material in the Banner composing room. The paper had not gone to press and some news matter was pied. Tom Clark and Battle Clark were sitting on opposite sides of a table in the composing room, and a heavy beam grushed the table to splinters. Several men were alightly injured.

Grand New Year's Fete. LONDON, January 1.-The boys section of Papers' school, in the district of Forest Gate, in connection with White Chapel and Popular Unions, took fire last night, while the inmates were asleep, and was burned, with terrible re sults, twenty-six of the boys, who were in the upper stories, being suffocated before they could be rescued. Fifty-eight other boys were safely taken from the burning building amid terrible excitement. Two of the matrons of the institution escaped in safety by SLIDING DOWN THE WATER PIPES. Several of the boys escaped in the same way. The superintendent of the school rushed through the flames repeatedly and brought out a number of inmates. There were 600 persons in the institution. The bodies of those who in the institution. The bodies of those who were suffocated were carried to the main hall of the building, which was still profusely decorated with Christmas greens. The fire was started by the overheated stove.

The female department, in which were 250 girls, was not touched. The boys retired last evening in the highest spirits, having been promised presents at the New Year fete today. The scenes in the main hall, where the bodies of the dead boys lie, are harrowing. Relatives and school-fellows of those who perished are loud in their lamentations.

HOW THE FIRE ORIGINATED. Further reports of the fire show that it originated in the clothing room beneath the boys' dormitory. The smoke and flames issuing dormitory. The smoke and flames issning from the stove flue alarmed those sleeping on the top floor, and they made their escape. The fire engines were promptly on the scene. The employes of the adjacent railway station rushed to the scene and rendered valuable aid. The cries of the boys who were unable to escape were terrible. The bodies of the two boys were badly burned, but it is believed that they were suffocated before they were burned. The ages of the boys are from seven to twelve years.

At 10 p. m. the palace has the appearance of a huge furnace. The heat was so great at the lally prevent the approach of the small in orgade, which, at best, could have done but fittle. The queen's apartments have suffered most.

As soon as the fire at Laeken was reported, the king and queen suspended the New Year's day reception and hastened thither. They witnessed the total destruction of this magnificent palace. This was their summer residence. It is said the fire was caused by a defective slove in the officers' departments.

Much plate has been saved, but valuable pictures, gobelin tapestries and the great library are all consumed. The exicusive greenhouses and stables are not touched. The king is very anxious about the statuary in the rotunda. There is little hope that any of it is saved. The only occupants of the pulsace at the time of the breaking out of the fire were princess Clementine, aged seventeen, a lady attendant and her governness. The governess having escaped with others, returned to the princess apartments to secure some valuables and was sufficoated there. The queen is greatly grieved at her fate. Another poignant source of regret for her majesty is that she loses interesting souventrs of her children, especially of her son, who died at the age of twelve. Napoleon I resided for some time in this palace, but it has since been much enlarged and improved.

It is estimated that one-half the civilized world has gone to bed with a sneeze and beadache.

The grip is not confined to filthy or unfavored localities. It knocks with "equal pace at the palace and the cottage gate." The Russian influenza seems to be spreading, aithough it is doubtful whether it has really reached this country. The "Russian influenza of 1889 does not appear to be essentially different from the "Tyler grip" of 1843. It was quick in taking hold, and disappeared almost as suddenly as it came. It was not a fatal disease, nor does the present influenza seem to be dangerous. It seldom runs for more than five days, and often leaves its victim within three.

In the Medical Journal for July, 1870, Dr. W. H. Doughty, or Augusta, had an article on "Climatological Disease." It was in the fall of 1887, in the midst of a dry, dusty term, which extended to the equinoctial period, under the penetrating influence of a cold northeast wind that blew to the end of September, an epidemic influenza visited suddenly the city of Augusta, prostrating hundreds and even thusands in a very short time. Whole families were taken in a few days, the direct attacks being sometimes complicated with suffocative catarrh. It went as it came, quickly, leving silent hearthstones to monument the numerous vacant chairs left as the footprints of its fearful irreption. What could be more unnatural or essentially foreign to this climate at such a season and under the circumstances precedent? It was like some fleree Euroglydon in its disastrous descent upon the quies stillness of an inland sea."

TWO MURDERS IN SOUTH CAROLINA

One the Result of Whisky, and the Other an CHABLESTON, S. C., January 1.-[Special.]

Murders seem to be increasing in the palmetto state
Two are reported from Darlington county.
George Windham, aged eighteen, white, stabbed
Robert Gaudy, colored, aged fifteen, in the heart.
The two boys had been sent to a neighboring town with a wagon to bring supplies. They got drunk on their way home and quarrelled. After killing Gaudy, Windham drove the wagon home, the body of the victim in it, unhitched the horses and fied. In the same county, Aleck Easterling, colored, was assassinated in his dwelling near Ebenezer township. The man was sitting with his family in his diningroom. The door was ajar. The assassin thrust his gun through the door and fired, killing the victim with a load of buckshot. The assassin

A race riot occurred in Orangeburg county yesterday. It started in a drunken quarrel between a white man, named Collier, and a negro, named Fulton. Both were armed. After the first shot both parties were reinforced by others of their respective races, and a fusilade was exchanged. Two negroe were slightly wounded. The parties separated however, and no further fighting occurred.

to State who Inflicted Them.

RICHMOND, Va., January 1.— rick Goodrich, manager of the Richmond granite quarry, died here today at the Exchange hotel, under rather mysterious circumstances. On December 22d he appeared at the hotel office cut and bruised on the face, and told the clerk he had fallen against a chair and hurt himfelf. The clerk was rather doubtful of the fujuries having been received in the manner indicated and advised Goodrich to go to his room and send for a physician. Goodrich went to his room, but did not send for a physician until next day. Upon being examined it was found he was bruised as if he had been stabbed and stamped upon with the heel of a boot. His condition becoming alarming, the father of the wounded man—W. D. Goodrich, of New York, a member of the law firm of Goodrich & Co.—was summoned here. The injured man continued to sink until death occurred today. The coroner will hold an inquest.

THE BARNWELL TROUBLE. The Blacks Threaten to Burn the Town-The

Trouble Not Over. CHARLESTON, S. C., January 1 .- [Special.]-Dispatches received here tonight indicate that there are probabilities of trouble in Barnwell. Telegrams have been received at Blackville and other neighboring towns asking for help, and a special train left Blackville, fifteen miles distant from Barnwell, with reinforcements, It is said that the negroes intend to burn the town. The trouble is by no means over, and the whole county seems to be up in arms. A conflict between the whites and blacks seems to be imminent. Tragedies in North Carolina. ASHEVILLE, N. C., January 1.-A terrible tragedy took place in Mitchell county, North Carolina, twelve miles from Bakersville, the county seat. In a drunken row on Christmas day, three men were killed. Friday, Monroe Garland, brother of one of the murdered men rode up to a crowd in the same place and fired into a crowd, killing three and wounding twelve. He Killed All of Them.

New Orleans, January 1 .- A Times-Dem crat Galvesion special says: A private telegram re-ceived here gives a meagre account of a triple kill-ing which occurred at Brazonia, on Monday evening. A man named Walker was returning home when he was fred on by three men lying in ambush. He immediately returned the fire and succeeded in killing all three, but in the conflict was severely wounded, and is not expected to re-cover.

Fell off the Platform Louisville, January 1.— Dan M. Bowmar, formerly proprietor of the Woodford, Ky., Suu, and later a well known business man of Chicago, was found dead on the Monon road, seventy miles north of this city this morning. He had fallen off the platform of the sleeper in some way and was crushed to death. He was proparing for the publication of a paper in Chicago in a few daya.

The two new members, Mr. Erwin from the fourth and Mr. Winship from the sixth, pre-sented their certificates of election and qualification and were given seats. The board then organized by the election of Mr. Hammock as president and Mr. Terry as secretary. Su-perintendent Richards presented his annual report. It was a paper complete, giving in detail the work of his department for the year and suggesting the improvements neces-sary. Secretary Terry's report for the year of '89 was read, too. The board ordered the re-ports to be transmitted to the general council at its regular meeting next meeting.

In Columbus in May. Professor W. M. Slaton, of the Boys' Hich school, will read a paper before the state teachers' convention in Columbus next May. The paper is being prepared now. A few days age the professor received a letter from the president and secretary of the Teachers' asso-ciation requesting him to deliver an address or present a paper for publication to the convention. He chose the latter and at once began working upon the production. Those who know Professor Slaton feel assured that he will acquit himself most creditably.

For two days past the committee on teachers from the board of education have been at work to fill the place. On Monday three applicants presented themselves for examination and were thoroughly questioned. The applicants were Mr. R. C. Mitchell, of Gainesville; Mr. E. E. West, of Rome, and Mr. Thomas Murray, of Conyers. Yesterday the examination papers prepared by the gentlemen were examined by the committee, and today at twelve o'clock the committee will meet in Superintendent Slaton's office and select a teacher. The gentlemen who passed the examination are not the only candidates.
Among others who are willing to accept the position is Mrs. Knight, and it is generally believed that she will be the successor of Professor Mobley. There appears to be a growing desire among the members of the board of education to give the schools to the ladies entirely.

The candidates now appear to be:
Mr. Tom Corrigan, Mr. M. Blanchard, Hon.

They are Hon. J. W. English and Captain William Brotherton.

Already the election of their successors is being discussed. Captain English has been a member of the board for many years and the growth of the police department in efficiency is largely due to his careful study and hard work. As chairman of the board he makes few demands upon the council without securing them. It is understood that both Captain English and Captain Brotherton will be candidates for re-election.

The Emigration Beats All Previous Records.

RALEIGH, N. C., January 1.—[Special.]—The exodus of the negres this week breaks all the records. Monday and restarday fifteen care of them left the Goldsboro section for Georgis, where they will work in furpentine forests. Many negroes from this state have herelofore gone anhually to Georgis, but left their families behind them and always returned during the holidays. They are now going to stay, and are taking their families with them. Today three special exodus trains left Goldsboro and Seima. On board of these were one thousand negroes all bound for Missaippl, and in charge of labor agents who have collected them. These negroes will work on farms in the Yazoo delta. It is calculated that ten thousand negroes left the state during December, and it is asid that more than that number will go this month. They are hired by the labor agents, who are steadily at work among them, alded by negroes in this state, who, it is alleged, are paid so much per head for all whom they induce to leave. The people do not at all object to the exodus, which promises to continue as long as the agents have orders for negroes.

by inaugurating a walking match for gentlemen. These three Napoleons of finance were Mr. Vandervere, of New Orleans, with a cap-

The hall being engaged the next move was to boom the match. For this purpose advertising contracts amounting to $20 were made, and due notice that a walking match was to be held anneared in print.

made, and due notice that a walking match was to be held appeared in print. The only other absolute necessity to be provided was the walkers, and for this purpose Messrs. Barker, Lucas and Praeter, the mountain wonder, were engaged. The three managers were each to receive one-third of the profits so they felt justified in promising $15 to each walker. To make the affair more imposing, the three principals also entered the race.

Yesterday a bond was made for his appearance at court, and he was released from custody. A Scientific Contribution that Will Create Stir in Geological Circles.

WASHINGTON, January 1.—Colonel Gar rick Mallery, of the Smithsonian Institution, WASHINGTON, January 1.—Colonel Garrick Mallery, of the Smithsonian Institution, who is recognized as an authority on Indian traditions, religions and languages, has just completed a contribution to science that is likely to cause considerable stir in the geological circles. It is entilled "Israelite and Indian; a Parallel in Planes of Culture," and was written for the American Association for the Advancement of Science, of which he is the vice president and chief of the anthropological section. In this report Colonel Mallery overthrows and completely demolishes a popular and almost universal theory that all the savage tribes of America, before their contact with civilization, had a formulated and established religious faith, believed in a single Supreme Being a future life and a system of rewards and punishments after death. This theory, which has been accepted and disseminated by religious missionaries of all denominations among the Indians, has been the chief, link to connect them with the pre-historic races of the Mosaic era, and at the same time has been used to demonstrate that man's a creature, however ignorant or dehistoric races of the Mosaic era, and at the same time has been used to demonstrate that man'as a creature, however ignorant or degraded, was divinely inspired with a revelation or an instinct that recognized the one supreme being, the immortality of the soul and hope of happiness or fear of misery after death, accordingly as his early lite was spent. Colonel Mallery reports that after years of investigation into the traditions of all the North American tribes. representing ifty-

North American tribes, representing fifty-eight linguistic stocks and more than 300 laneight linguistic stocks and more than 300 languages, he has been forced to the conclusion that the aborigines had no such instinct and no such religious belief until after contact with European civilization, when they gained it from the missionaries. These missionaries, he says, were imbued with the dogma, and sought and therefore found evidence of one primoval faith, but were misled by their own enthusiasm. He continues:

"After careful examination, with the assistance of explorers and linguists. I reassert my

"After careful examination, with the assist-ance of explorers and linguists, I reassers my statement that no tribe or body of Indians be-fore missionary influence entertained any for-mulated or distinct belief in a single over-ruling 'great spirit,' or any being that corres-ponded to the Christian conception of God. But I freely admit, with even greater empha-sis that an aslounding number of customs of sis, that an astounding number of customs of the North American Indians are the same as recorded of the ancient Israelite He tells, too, of the experience of W. W. Warren, who translated Bible history for the Ojibway nation, and was invariably met with the remark from the native priest: "This book must be true, for our ancestors have told us simple stories, capacities, "" us simlar stories, generation after genera-tion, since the world was new," and only us simlar stories, generation after generation, since the world was new," and only last year, when a well informed chief of the Muskokis was being questioned as to the religious myths and legends of his tribes, he replied: "They are all in the Old Testament.

We can read them there without the trouble of taking them down from our people."
Colonel Mallory also argues that it is useless to attempt to Christianize the Indians until after they have been civilized.

'A telegram as to the arrest of Charles C. Hoffee, at Bremen, Ga., and his having been jailed to answer a charge of bigamy, resulted in the looking up of Hoffee's record here at his home. Hoffee was born and raised in this county and came of lonest people, but he has always been inclined to be "fly." He has had considerable experience in a half dozen vocations, among others those of book agent, school teacher and traveling salesman, and achieved notoriety in all of them. He also tried his dexter hands at burglary and larceny, for which he spent some time behind the bars of the county jail. He married a daughter of William C. Runyan, of this place, June 23, 1881 and

He left here about two years ago, accompanied by his wife's brother, who is at present a theological btudent in Chattanooga, Tenn. Young Hoffee had no money of his own, nor has he ever done much for the support of his wife and family. He has been writing his wife, urging that she should get a divorce, or that she should keep quiet, when he would marry Miss Cheney, as she was worth $90,000, and he would gain possession of her wealth and then desert her (Miss Cheney) and return to his wife here. This Mrs. Hoffee indignantly refused, of course, and knew nothing of his further career until she received the message announcing his marriage in Georgia, and inquiring as to his antecedents here His

SAVANNAH'S NEW HOTEL.

The De Sota Opens Under a Full Head of

SAVANNAH, Ga., January 1.-Special.]-At noon today the De Sota hotel register was thrown open on the clerk's desk. John C. Calhoun, of New York, was the first guest to register and be assigned a room. His brother Pat, of Atlanta, was the second. The hotel is a magnificent and im-posing structure, fronting on Bull and Liberty streets and overlooking Madison square in which is the Jasper monument. During the afternoon the register's page filled up rapidly with names. From 5 until 8 o'clock dinner was served, and there were dozens of dinner parties in full dress. Four hundred and sixty-seven people were served, not including the directors of the hotel company, who gave a complimentary dinner to the architect and a few prominent citizens. The hotel and site cost over half a million dollars. It has two hundred and thirty-four guest rooms, and in its furnishings and appointments throughout is excelled only by one hotel east of the Rocky mountains.

THE COLUMBUS COUNCIL.

The New City Council Holds Its First Meeting. Columbus, Ga., January 1.—[Special.]—The new city council held its first regular meeting tonight, which continued until after ten o'clock. Many new ordinances were introduced and adopted. The office of commissioner of public works was created, at a salary of fifteen hundred dollars was created, at a salary of fifteen hundred dollars per year, and Mr. C. G. Barney was elected to fill it. A new standing committee of five on statistics and advertising was created, with Mr. J. S. Garrett as chairman. It is authorized to employ a secretary. An ordinance was passed requiring the saloons to close at eleven instead of twelve o'clock at night. A contract was closed with the electric lighting company to light the entire city by electricity. Another ordinance prohibiting minors from entering barrooms was also passed. The salary of the marshal has been increased to $1,500.

Collector W. H. Johnson has appointed Mr. H. J. Williams stamp collector in this city, in place of Dr. T. R. Mitchell. Mr. Williams takes charge at once.

The Whites Did Not Turn Out. SAVANNAH, Ga., January 1.—[Special.]— Two weeks ago an invitation was extended the Grand Army of the Republic to join with the col-ored military companies in the celebration of ored military companies in the celebration of emancipation day. At that time it was understood that the white post was embraced in the fivitation. Today when the whites did not show up in line, the blacks explained that the invitation did not originally include the Hancock post, but was aderessed only to the colored post. The truth seems to be that the white post was sounded on the joint parade question before a written invitation was sent.

Came to His Death by Accident. CARROLLTON, Ga., January 1.—[Special.]— James E. Pearce, the fifteen year old son of Rev. It was writ-ten last summer for the North American Review, but, in consequence of what Mr. Davis character ized as the mutilation of his reply to Lord Wolse-ley, by the editor of the Review, he withdrew it from that periodical and gave it to Belford's Maga-zine, in the January number of which the first part of it appears. The facts given by Mr. Davis are divided into three groups. The first group are designed to show, while no attempt is made to deny the existence of great and enedless sufferings, yet that they were not owing to any fault of the confederate authorities, and that, contrary to the common belief at the north, neither the sufferings nor the mortality among the federal captured soldiers in confederate prisons, were so great as the sufferings and mortal-

Atlanta men that are Atlanta men are distinguished the world over for the enthusiasm and persistency with which they talk up their

Atlanta men that have drifted into other towns can be distinguished almost as readily by the Atlanta fashion in which they talk up their adopted homes. An illustration of the latter statement is Editor W. W. Turner, of the Albany News and Advertiser. He is an old Atlanta boy, and has scores of friends here. He was talking to a crowd yesterday in the Kimball rotunda. "You never saw a town grow so before. They are all pulling together, and pulling in dead earnest, too. It's a boom that'll make Albany the biggest town south of Atlanta, in Georgia inside of five years. You watch what I tell

The editor waited for his general remark to take full effect, and then branched off into particulars.

"The first step taken was the action of the city council in ordering an election for the issuance of $20,000 bonds to build a system of sewerage throughout the city. That election was ordered for December 16th. In the consideration of the sewerage question, the subject of waterworks was naturally brought in. The city has no public system of waterworks, but is supplied by water from artesian wells, owned by private parties, who lay their pipes through the streets carrying water to private residences and stores, and yielding them handsome incomes from this source alone. At the same time, they pay no tax whatever on their pipes laid in the

This opened at once a bitter fight between the waterworks and anti-waterworks factions the waterworks and anti-waterworks factions, the latter being composed largely of the private well-owners, who derive handsome incomes from their wells.

There was a municipal ticket then in the field for mayor and councilmen for the ensuing year, but the people determined to carry these measures of public advancement, ing year, but the people determined to carry these measures of public advancement, met in mass meeting, and nominated what was known as the waterworks ticket. At the city election in December, this ticket was elected overwhelmingly.

The anti-waterworks faction by this were made more bitter, and many of them who had made a demand of the city for sewerage openly announced their opposition to this measure, and on December 16th, in the sewerage election, they fought it bitterly. A two-thirds vote of the qualified voters of the city voting "For bonds," was necessary to carry this election and it failed, lacking nine votes of the necessary two thirds.

This, though, was not a defeat, as the agitation of the waterworks question had drawn the attention of the voters from the sewerage election which was very quiet and aroused very little interest.

The council at its next meeting promptly ordered another election on the sewerage question for February 3, 1890, and in the meantime the city is being stirred from one end to the other over the waterworks election which tion for February 3, 1880, and in the meantime the city is being stirred from one end to the other over the waterworks election which occurs on next Monday, January 6th.

"It is believed by the majority of the citizens that the waterworks election will be carried, although the water crowd has a hard fight to make. The city, in ordering the election for, issuing bonds for waterworks made the amount sufficiently large to not only erect a system of waterworks but to indemnify the well-owners in any loss they may sustain alone amounting to about twenty-five hundred dollars a year, most magnanimously came out in favor of waterworks, and in case the city erects its own system this income will cease. He has been heartily commended by the people for his public spirit, and has made sceres of friends by his manly and unselfish position on this question.

In case the waterworks election is not carried by the water crowd next Monday, the city council will order another election in thirty days and every succeeding thirty days until the question is carried. It will be the same way with sewerage.

Other cities are going ahead building public improvements, and the enterprising citizens of Albany are determined that the artesian city shall keep pace with them, although there are some old fogies and moss backs there who are trying to keep it back."

Scrap Book." They are said to give a very amusing performance of the "Troubadours" order, and in a very artistic manner. Fun and art are certainly two elements that promise much enjoyment and deserve patronage. The Springfield, Mo, Daily Heralt, in a few lines, thus noticed the merits of the performance:

"Those who witnessed the entortainment at the opera house last night are universally in accord in testifying to its merits as a first class performance. The musical speciatics by the different members were heartily encored, while the different characterizations by Mr. Royce fairly convulsed the audience. The ladies are fine musicians and singers, and, taken as a whole, the company is excellent."

singers, and, taken as a whole, the company is excellent."

George H. Adams.

Friday and Saturday, with matinee, George H. Adams will appear in a farce which has been enjoying a run all through the country.

The Courier-Journal, in speaking of it, says: "George H. Adams, assisted by Toma Hanlon and a capital company of vocalists and comedians, opened at Harris's yesterday, in the farcical musical comedy 'He, She, Ilim and Her,' before two large audiences. The purpose for which 'He, She, Him and Her' was written is that of affording amusement, and it does that to a marked degree. Mr. Adam's characterization is carefully considered and full of bright and salient points, his long education in pantomine naturally standing him in good stead. Toma Hanlon was a delight and surprise to everyhody. The supporting company is good, and numbers twenty people."

It has been the furore of London for a whole year; it has taken as well in New York, where it was given 100 nights consecutively at the Madison Square theater. The New York World, of last August 11th, thou stated its success: "Bootle's Baby" does no, like "Fauntieroy," owe its attractiveness to the primacy and potency of innocence subduing the gross conventional elements of selfishness and distrust. The baby in this case meets with confidence, manliness, bravery and faith in the person of Bootles, who is the central figure, and it is to his generous nature and not to the winsomeness of babyhood that we owe the interest of the piece.

Is strictly a vegetable compound, being the juices of roots and herbs gathered from the forests. Unlike the many mercurial remedies put upon the market, S. S. S. cures without any hurtful effect.

Cancer of the Breast Cured.

The following is an extract from a letter written by Mrs. S. E. McDougald, a highly esteemed and Christian lady of Greenville, Ala., underdate of February 23d, 1889: "About two years ago a cancerous tumor made its appearance on my breast and grew rapidly. I became alarmed and consulted the best local physician, and was given the usual remedies which I continued to take for upwards of six months, but without deriving any benefit, for the cancer continued to grow worse. I then went to the drug store of Dr. C. B. Herbert & Son, of this place, and purchased a few bottles of SWIFT'S SPECIFIC (S. S. S.), and commenced taking it, and in a short time I was permanently cured, and have had no symptoms of a return since.

THE DAILY CONSTITUTION INCLUDING THE SUNDAY EDITION TWENTY CENTS PER WEEK.

THE SUNDAY CONSTITUTION SENT TO ANY ADDRESS.

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 2, 1890.

A Busy Year.

Now, to business! The toilers of the land have finished their annual round of festive days; they have laughed away their cares, and enjoyed their

It was wise to make the most of the holfday season, but it will be anything but wise to prolong either the rest or the revel. Our workers have golden opportunities before them, but they are face to face with great duties and grave problems. The south has new towns to build, new railways to construct, new mines and new industries to look after. She has vexing political and economic questions to settle. Work, and work alone, will make this section keep step to the music of the union, and forge to the head of the procession.

Let us settle down to business. This is the watchword now for the rising south, the growing empire state, and our metropolis with her one hundred thousand population almost ready for the directory. Let us get together, and pull together, and see what sort of a showing we can make at the beginning of another year!

Let Us Have the Facts. It is a significant fact that only the republican organs—the organs of the administration, in fact-that are shedding any tears over the timely and altogether proper deposition of Dom Pedro and his family in Bra-

It is only the republican organs that are warning congress against hasty action in recognizing the republic of Brazil. Their arguments are not such as would have been used or tolerated in this country fifty years ago, but have been imported from Europe to serve a new fashion and a tory

The emperor and his family, wno had no claim whatever on the people of Brazil-who were interlopers, in fact-have been sent abroad for their health, and this the United States republicans could not help; but they are very anxious now that the congress of the great North American republic should take no step calculated to offend any foreign monarchy.

Just why the United States republicans should display their anxiety in this direction It is difficult to perceive. Such things have been done before and no great fuss was made over them. The French republic received official acknowledgment, and the Spanish republic, which is a republic no longer, was recognized on the spur of the moment and there is nothing going to show that the John Henrys who represent us abroad felt seriously the effects of it. What then, can stand in the way of a recognition of the efforts of Brazil to govern herself in accordance with the views of her leading

It is all very queer, to say the least. If Brother Blaine's great American policy, which threatened at one time to be twins, was still-born, the public ought to know the facts. At the very least, the doctor's certificate ought to be produced.

Mr. Halstead's Humor.

There is one feature of the Ohio ballotbox forgery business that cannot have escaped the attention of our readers-namely, that Mr. Halstead's explanations, so far as they relate to J. B. Foraker, have taken on a decidedly humorous turn. Mr. Halstead was serious enough when he was ridding his mind of the main facts of the complication into which Foraker had plunged him, but he has a decidedly humorous turn and this he has now brought fully into play. In a different way, but with precisely the same Intention, Mr. Halstead is as droll as Artemus Ward or Mark Twain.

With an air of candor quite inimitable. he still insists that Foraker was shocked and grieved when he saw Sherman's name on the forged document, although Foraker tells quite a different story. The facts are that Foraker knew about all the names that were to be found on the document, with the possible exception of that of S. S. Cox; but if It were otherwise, why was he not shocked and grieved when Wood told him about Mc-Kinley's name? Is McKinley's reputation for honesty less than that of John Sherman? Did Foraker have any reason to believe that he was a corruntionist?

Foraker, himself, tells quite a different tale. Writing to Mr. Halstead, he says: "When I saw it (the forged paper) I was surprised to find in it the names that are there with Mr. Campbell's name." He has since admitted that he knew that the names of McKinley and Butterworth were to appear on the paper for which he was bargaining with Wood.

This is funny enough, but it is not quite as funny as the remark Mr. Halstead makes in his comments on one of THE CONSTITU-TION'S editorials. "After the lawyers," says Mr. Halstead, "came the important witness in the case-the man who, under Wood's direction, did the tracing; and he threw an intense light on the subject. Then Mr. Halstead had the two gentlemen of the republican political persuasion, who knew all about it, call, and laid the proof of the forgery before them. They had seen the paper, and never suspected that it was not precisely what it 'purported to be; and when the certainty that it was forgery was placed under their eyes, they were too deeply disgusted to speak, and sought their homes in meditation In this extract the rollicking humor of Mr. Halstead is seen in very fine shape. Here are two prominent republicans called to review the remains of one of the most infamous political frauds of this generation, and they are so disgusted that they refused to speak, but sought their homes in meditation. What were they disgusted about? Because the truth had come out? Because the discovery was made that Sherman, Me-Kinley and Butterworth, to say nothing of Campbell, were not corruptionists?

In spite of Mr. Halstead's humor, the disgust of these two prominent republicans, "who knew all about it," needs more explanation than can be crowded into a foot-note.

The Czar and His Future. The discovery of another plot of the ni-hillsts against the czar brings out the true story of his recent illness.

It was announced a few days ago that his majesty was suffering from a return of the influenza. The facts do not sustain this statement. The czar was in good health, but one day immediately after dinner he was taken with violent pains in the stomach. There was a flurry among his attendants, and physicians were summoned. It was found that poison had been mixed with the food of the royal patient, and for sometime his condition was critical. Powerful antidotes were administered, and with great difficulty the sick man was saved.

In St. Petersburg it is admitted that the czar's illness was caused by the attempt of a nihilist to poison him. The Russian ruler is today the most wretched man in all the world. He lives under a suspended sword. He dares not sleep, or eat, or breathe the fresh air outside of his palace. Beyond his own family he can trust nobody. Physicians, attendants, courtiers, guardsall are under suspicion. The most devoted of them all may at any moment turn out to Threatened men live long, is an old saying. But it does not comfort the czar. The men who have sworn to smite him down are determined and merciless. Year after year they go smiling to Siberia or the scaffold, rejoicing in their martyrdom. They know that sooner or later their eath-bound comrades will do their murderous work.

The czar has but one hope. He sees t possibility of escape in a foreign war. When all of Russia's resources are massed for an aggressive onslaught Constantinople must fall, England's empire in the east will be shattered, and the Napoleonic prophecy that Europe will become all cossack will be in a fair way to be realized.

Doubtless such a stupendous crusade of conquest would carry along with its flaming tidal wave the plotters who are now trying to strike at the heart of Russia. A successful foreign war with glory and plunder for its object generally allays discontent at home. The trouble is that such a war is not yet in sight. It will take time and money to undertake it under favorable conditions, and long before the czar is ready to take the field a breakfast or a bomb, dinner or dynamite may slay him in the palace of his fathers. Time will show-parhaps before another year rolls round.

Republican Bosh.

General Imboden having remarked that on a vote with no extraneous issues four or five of the southern states would go overwhelmingly for protection, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat declares that "he may expect to be denounced by the democratic organs of the south as an enemy of the peo

This is the sort opbosh with which the republican organs are trying to keep the country awake. What General Imboden means is that if the negro question were out of the way and there were no fears of negro dominition, the south would divide on economic questions pretty much as it did in the days when the whig party attracted a large number of voters.

But General Imboden's "if" is as big as the problem itself. If the moon was made of green cheese and everybody could have a whack at it there would be less hunger in the world. If flying machines were successful we might see what the moon is made of anyhow, and give the one-horse astronomers something to write about.

But it is idle to talk of these things. The moon is a mere moon to us, and nothing to the contrary will ever be known in our day and generation. The south has the negro problem to deal with and settle, and while this is the case it is idle to talk about di visions on political or economic lines.

At the same time, there is no need to criticize General Imboden, and no thoughtful southerner will engage in such ridiculous ousiness. All that keeps the south solidall that could keep it solid in the face of the pressure of important questions-is the negro problem, which is intensified by the sectional spirit which the republican polititicians foster and keep alive.

No Cause for Alarm.

In another column will be found a letter from ex-Governor Bullock on the southern situation.

The governor is unnecessarily alarmed. Nothing has occurred to call for any extraordinary action on the part of our state authorities. The few acts of lawlessness in the southern states during Christmas week can hardly be urged as a sufficient justification for a federal election law. Besides, it will be recollected that this lawlessness was not confined to the south. On the day of the Barnwell, South Carolina, lynching, Indiana came to the front with another lynching equally reprehensible.

While these violent outbreaks everywher are to be deplored, there is nothing in the southern situation to give us cause for Governor McKinney, of Virginia. The inauguration of Governor McKinney in Richmond yesterday, brought into promi nence a new figure which looms largely above the horizon. His gallant campaign against Mahone and his magnificent victory have stamped him as a man of power. From the account elsewhere it will be seen that he is, in many respects, a strong man, and one of good staying qualities. He appears not to be a much advertised man, but one whose merit has thrust him steadily forward from early manhood. Governor McKinney

A Card from Ex-Governor Bullock. EDITORS CONSTITUTION: Your strong ediorial calling on our people to "stand by the law," and similar editorial advice in other leading newspapers of the state, are very cheering.

The message to the nation which the brilliant and on all proper occasions I have urged upon my party that the equal rights of the negro as a citizen could hest be maintained by leaving the usine with the people who make up the comm the black man is an integral part.

The growing disposition by conservative republi-cans to accept this plan—a disposition which was quickened into active life by Grady's great speech in Boston—is now checked and well-nigh dispelled by the recent occurences which good people here, as elsewhere, deplore. But something more than regret is necessary. Active steps must be taken at once to make prevention effective taken at once to make prevention effective.

We are disposed to hug the delusion that there is no authority for the general government to interfere with state affairs. This is a dangerous mistake. Such interference would be a great misfortune to us, but the authority for it is ample. It will be our own fault if we don't see to it that there is no occasion. Those representing the property and inteligence of our organized communities must take prompt and comprehensive measures to satisfy the prompt and comprehensive measures to satisfy the ountry at large that these issues are safe with us If, in the opinion of congress, a state government fails to maintain a republican form of government with equal protection to the life and property of all its citizens, it would not only be its right, but its duty to take "by appro priate legislation" action to secure it.

There has not been a legislature assembled in Georgia since 1871 where any attention has been paid to the political disabilities imposed by the constitution of the United States.

Would it not be a fair inquiry whether there was a valid state government, when its legislature ig-nored a part of the constitution its members were sworn to support? Would not the fact be claimed as evidence that "the state" was not a legal organization, and therefore not worthy to be trusted with other national requirements?

The sooner the supremacy of law is impressed upon the violent and irresponsible elements among us, and that the black citizen is entitled under the law to all and every public right of any

NEW LAWS IN GEORGIA.

SOME OF THOSE WHICH WENT INTO EFFECT YESTERDAY

ng Them, Captain Gordon's Bill in the Interest of Employes-The Oyster Laws and the Law Regulating Hours of Labor, For several weeks many law-abiding citizens have been making themselves liable to proseention by transgressing the state ordinances.

They had, however, no idea that they were do ing so as the laws they broke have not yet been published except in pamphlet form, and many of the judges and lawyers are no better poster on the acts of the last legislature. Yesterday many laws repealing old ones and making new ones, went into effect, and it may well be that inadvertantly many people may make themselves liable. Among the public laws that went into effect were several of great importance. HELPING WORKING WOMEN.

Act No. 609 is one of interest to all females who are employed in shops, factories or mer-cantile establishments. The law requires all persons or corporations employing females to provide suitable seats for them, and to permit their use when not necessarily engaged in the active duties for which they are employed. A fine of not less than ten dollars, or more than twenty-five dollars, is imposed for each violation of the law. AS TO WEIGHERS.

Act No. 643 amends section 1599 of the code and provides that salesmen or weighers of cotton or any other produce must be sworn and that they may make a deduction for wet such as may be reasonable, when the seller or his agent consent. A tare must also be allowed for jute and cotton bagging. The weigher, in tender ing a true account, must state the gross weight of each bale, bag or package and also the numper of pounds deducted for bagging and fastnings, and the net weight.

THE OYSTER LAW.

Act No. 298 repeals certain sections of the ode, and makes it unlawful to catch oysters from May 1st to August 31st. It provides for the manner in which oysters shall be takenmakes it unlawful to use scoop, rake, drag or dredge in certain waters. Oyster beds in creeks and rivers not exceeding 130 feet in width are private property, and all leases must be recorded.

PUT UP FIRE ESCAPES.

Act No. 610 requires owners of buildings nore than two stories in height, not including the basement, used in the third or highe stories as a factory or workshop, to provide more than one way of egress from each story. Six months is allowed for owners of buildings o make the required alterations, and if the work is not done by that time, the proprieto will be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be liable to a fine of not less than twenty-fiv nor more than one hundred dollars; but for the second offence, after having received written notice, the proprietor shall be liable to the same fine for each month that th neglect continues.

Act No. 599 reonleter Act No. 599 regulates the hours of labor which shall be required of all operatives employed in cotton or woolen manufacturing establishments in Georgia, and makes it unlawful to require more than eleven hours' unlawful to require more than eleven nours work from any one. The law states that all contracts shall be void where a longer time of labor is required, and a penalty is imposed for enforcing such contracts. Any person making a contract which will require more than eleven ours work, or any person having knowledge of such a contract, is competent to institute suit against the manufacturer guilty of violating the law, and the amount recovered as a forfeiture shall go to the benefit of the board of education of the county in which the viola-

THERE ARE OTHERS. Besides the above laws there are many others of great importance which either went into force yesterday or will do so during the next few weeks. Though there did not seem much to look Though there did not seem much to look forward to in the way of New Year's festivities, the amusements of yesterday, summed up, were found to be sufficient to give pleasure to many sets in society. Mrs. Harwood's reception for unmarried people, the reception at the Young Men's Christian association building, the N, L. dance for the younger set of society, and the dance by the Alario club, a still younger set, were sumcient to make even as stoomy a New Year as that of 1890 a very joyous gloomy a New Year as that of 1890 a very joyour

Mrs. Harwood's elegant mansion on Peachtree was the scene last evening of one of the most de-lightful and briliant entertainments ever given in Atlanta. The ample and richly furnished apart-ments make the house a perfect palace for enter-taining, and all the rooms were brilliantly lighted and throw appel to the guarte. The fullers described taining, and all the rooms were brilliantly lighted and thrown open to the guests. The foliage decorations were principally of holly, mistletoe and palm, and the flowers placed in cut glass bowls in the wide corridors and drawing rooms were chiefly superbroses, narcissus, hyacinths and violets. A vase in a bow window was filled with exquisite procedurate of the himself and plant and these same specimens of the pimeetta plant and these same flame-like leaves formed the center of the oval mound of flowers upon the refreshment table while the other blussoms were palma violets, roses and passion flowers. Cut class and silver bowls of fruit and flowers, beautifully leed cakes, silver candelbras with waxen tapers, formed the other table ap-pointments. The most delightful refreshments were exquisitely served. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

Miss Branch, of Augusta, the fair occasion of all this pleasure, was a radiant picture of a striking brunette beauty in an elegant Paris gown of white embroidered mousilin de sole Dver which the V-cut bodice finished with the udy musiin and a large bouquet of white Roman byacinths completing the toilet. This is Miss Banch's first season, and all who met her last evening agree with her admirers in Augusta that she is one of the hamdsomest and most distin-gue young girls in southern society.

Mrs. Harwood received her guests in an elegant toilet of black silk and silver, point lace and diamond ornaments.

Miss Harwood wore a strikingly handsome gown of cream silk tulle over -atin with a bodice of striped brocade diamonds, and a boquet of camelias.

Miss Francis Harwood's gown of sea foam tulle and silk was an ideal creation of a Paris dressmaker. The draperless were caught with two rows of English daistes, and these dainty flowers finished the V-cut bodice around the neck and bottom.

The guests present were:
The Misses Clarke, Julia Clarke, Potts, Speer, Inman, Raine, Boylston, Culpepper, Wilson, Maude, Dougherty, Wylle, Bird, Hammond, Bell, Mitchell, Turner, Orme, Boyd, Simpson, Dooley, Adair, Bonn, Marsh, Ketner, Hillyer, Annie Adair, Barker, Thompson, Goldsmith, Locke, Jones, McBride, Franc Jones, Howell, Gay, Gill, Elliott, Campbell,

Decatur was in a social blaze last evening. at the home of her parents on Broad street. The upper and lower floors were thrown open, and with the brilliant illuminations and decorations of holly and misseltoe presented a scene of beauty and love-line s. A large number of guests were present, and the reception was one of the most successful that has been given in Decatur this winter.

Among those present were: Misses Barnards and Miss Gray of Atlanta, Miss Bossie Scott, Miss Annie Ansley, Misses Julia and Willie Pratt, Misses Annie and Florrie Jones, Miss Beila Footman, Miss Lucy Green, Messrs, Elkin and Ogletree of Atlanta, Mr. Charles Wimpy, Mr. Frank Lathrop, Mr. Manly Boykin, Mr. Houston Powell, Mr. Bob Cunningham, Mr. Thomas Ripley, Mr. Mack Heard, Mr. Charles Havard, Mr. Donald Fraser, Mr. Wiley Ansiy, Mr. Charles Conn.

The New Year reception under the auspices of the Woman's auxiliary, which was held for the young men of the city at the Y. M. C. A. building last evening, was one of the most delightful of those ladies' many charming entertainments. The handsome rooms were brilliantly lighted and artistically decked with mistletoe and holly, and the refreshments were served in the hall. Here the center table was one of the handsomest ever seen. Its center was a large and beautifully feed at one side, and all the refreshments were delightful and abundant. The friends of the association tributed most liberally to the entertainment and my prominent people called during the evening.

The syoung men of Atlanta enjoyed a rare pleasure in this entertainment and many of the loveliest and most attractive young ladies in the city assisted In receiving. A band of music added to the ever ng's pleasure, which was altogether perfect and

The Alirioso club dance given last evening at the handsome home of Mrs. W. B. Cox, on Ivy street, was most enthusiastically enjoyed by the young people invites. The committee of arrangements were Mr. Eugene Schmidt and Mr. John Wilkins, and they and the other members of the club deserve admiration for the manner in which everything was conducted. Never did a lot of young girls look flovelier, and never did both girls and boys have a

Mrs. Cornell, of Chicago, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Mamie Cornell, is at the Kimball. Miss Mamie Cornell will be peasantly remembered by many friends whom she made during her visit to the city last winter. The Misses Cornell are among Chicago's most charming belies.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock Miss Isma Dooly gives a lunch to twenty-five of her young lady friends at her homeon Mangum street. The affair will be a most elegant and delightful one.

Dalton, Ga., January 1.—[Special:]—A happy party of young people watched the old year out and the new offic in at the residence of Mr. G. M. Cannon, of this city. The beautiful place was Cannon, or this city.

The beautiful base spent turned over to the guests and the evening was spent in music, dancing, etc. Supper was served at half past eleven, and the party lingered over the table until late in 1890. No good resolutions were made. "The Gang" was formally organized and officers elected for the coming year. They propose giving their friends monthly entertainments and hope to make all as successful as the one last night. There were present, besides the host and hostess, Miss Hester Felker, Miss Belle King, Miss Blanche Bivings, Miss Man McCutchen Miss Nena Kenber Miss. A Letter From President Nunnally.

Macox, Ga., December 29, 1889.—Captain E. P. Howell, Atlanta, Ga. Dear Sir: Henry Grady died in his youth. He had scarcely entered the morning of his manhood. Had he lived to maturity, the world had seen what is only the product of a generation and the heritage of centuries—A MAN. Inclosed find my contribution. The monument is a small tribute to his worth—his deeds do better praise him—but some lady in some far-off day, may look upon his statue and feet the upliftungs of a mighty faith and hope, and be somebody and do something while he lives in the world. God bless the stricken ones. Yours, very truly,

CENSUS SUPERVISOR. It Is Believed that Mr. J. H. Thibedeau Will Be Appointed for this District. The next federal offices to be filled are hose connected with taking the census of 1890.

At the head of the list is the supervisor for this listrict, the third. Then the enumerators. There are quite a number of applicants for this position, and a lot of interest is feit in the appointment. The supervisor's is really an impogiant place. Besides the responsibility—and pay—attaching to the position, the supervisor has the appointment of more than sixty enumerators in this district, and the patronage is a considerable inducement.

district, and the patronage is a considerable inducement.

It is generally believed that Mr. J. H. Thibedeau, auditor of the W. and A., will be appointed for the Atlanta district. He is an expert in statistical work and is strongly recommended.

The appointment of these supervisors will probably be made the first business in Washington after the recess for the holidays.

There are six districts in Georgia, dividing the population of the state into six nearly equal parts.

The counties in this district are, Butts, Campbell, Carroll, Clayton, Coweta, DeKalb, Doughass, Fayette, Fullon, Gwinnett, Henry, Jackson, Jasper, Morgan, Newton, Oconce, Putnam, Rockdale, Spalding, and Walton.

A STORAGE MOTOR.

AARON HAAS HAS A WORD TO SAY ON THE SUBJECT.

He Has Just Returned from a Tour of Inspection of Electrical Railways-One that Pleases Him.

"It won't be long-you may depend upon

Mr. Aaron Haas, of the Union Street Railway company, returned Tuesday afternoon from a tour of inspection of the street car service in different northern cities and he was discussing the subject of rapid transit with several friends yesterday.
"Yes," he continued, "you may count upon one thing above all others—that it won't be long before we have rapid transit on all our lines. But the Union company does not propose to go into anything blindly. We expect to look the field over thoroughly and then get the very best thing that money can buy."

"You looked into the different systems?"

"Yes, I saw everything that was to be seen Three or four weeks ago I was very strongly in favor of the overhead wire system of electric cars, though some of the stockholders in our company were opposed to it on the ground that it had not been proven a commercial suc cess. Still I was anxious to get rapid transit, and favored that system as furnishing the only solution to the problem. Now I've

"You're against the wires?" "No, not exactly; but the fact is I think I've found something better.

Mr. Haas went on to tell of his visit to Philadelphia, New York, Boston and other cities. "In Philadelphia I examined the cars run by the storage battery system. The cars seemed to run well but the manufacturers are not sat-isfied yet and say so. Then I went to New York and examined the car run on the Fourth avenue line. There is only one car run on the line and that for only four hours a day. The company which operates that car contracted for a number of cars for the other lines in New York city but it struck me as I talked to the mangers that they were not altogether satisfied with their car. The greatest objection I found to it, however, was the fact that it has to be recharged at the end of every

"Now, here," Mr. Haas continued, producing the photograph of what seemed to be an ordinary street car, with some sort of a compartment at the bottom, "is by all odds the most satisfactory thing I found anywhere, and I must say I like it very much. That car is manufactured by the Union Car Manufacturing company, of Boston, whose works are at Amesbury, Mass. The car I saw is being successfully operated on a road three miles long, running from Danvers, Mass. Like our roads, that one is all up and down hill. When I spoke of the hilly eatures of Atlanta's roads to the Philadel phia and New York manufacturers they shook their heads, but here I found a storage battery being run with success on just such roads."

"Aren't the cars very heavy?" "They weigh about six tons. Our street cars are very light, but other electric cars are as heavy as these. But there are other features of this system which struck me. The cars are built to run ten miles an hour and will run thirty miles without being recharged. That would make it necessary for each of our cars o be recharged twice each day. This does not delay matters to any extent; all that is done s to take out one battery and put in anotherthe work of a very few minutes."

Somebody in the party suggested possible danger.
"There's not at all that I can see," said Mr. Haas. "The car seems to be a great success, and I would not be surprised if the Atlanta lines give it a trial. But we're going to take our time about deciding for the whole system. All electricicians are working to perfect the storage battery, and I believe this will prove the solution to the rapid transit question.

Have Reason to Be Grateful: The conductors and motor men on the Fulton county railroad are greatly assisted in their duties by the kind hearted ladies who live along the line. Every time bad weather sets in some of the ladies send out bowls of ho coffee, and the men say that in cold wet weather like that of yesterday it enables them to attend to their work with comparatively little suffering. They are very grateful for the consideration shown them, and the courtesy shown by them to all ladie is a direct result of the hot coffee, ch Connects Southwest Georgia with the Heart of Alabama-The Meeting of the Stockholders.

TROY, Ala., January 1.—[Special.]—The first annual meeting of the stockholders of the Alabama Midland railroad was held in this city Monday. The road is completed from Bainbridge to within three miles of this point, and the special train from Bainbridge brought up from along the line about 200 stockholders. The meeting was held in the afternoon in the courthouse, Hon. O. C. Wiley, president, in the chair. The old board of officers were all unanimously re-elected, and the action of the directory ratified, when the meeting adjourned. In the evening a grand banquet was given in the dining room of the City hotel. The menu was elaborate and elegant, and the table was arranged with exquisite taste. The following toasts were offered and responded to:

"The Iron Link that Connects Bainbridge with Troy," Hon, A. A. Wiley, of Montgomery. Response by Hon. Ben Russell, of Bainbridge, "The Alabama Midiand Railway," Captain W. F. Joseph, of Montgomery. "Southeast Alabama," Professor C. L. McCartha. "Engineering," Major H. A. Schwanecke. "The City of Troy," Hon. Charles Henderson, mayor of Troy, mayor of Troy.

"The City of Bainbridge," Captain H. G. Townsend, of Bainbridge.

"Difficulties of Railroading," Mr. T. W. Hoadley,

"Troy's Manufacturing and Agricultural Resources," Hon. F. J. Cowart, of Troy.
"The Press as a Power in Developing the Country," Colonel W. W. Screws, of the Montgomery "Troy as an Educational Center," Professor E. M. Shackleford, of the Normal school, of Troy. "Right of Way," Colonel G. Peterson, of Montgomery.

"Troy's Churches," Rev. J. F. Purser, pastor First Baptist church. "Georgia and Alabama," Colonel Johnson, of Columbus.
"1859," Hon. Peter M. Martin, of Greenville, Ga.

Troy is a live town of 4,000 inhabitants. It several important manufacturing enterprises, and ships upwards of 40,000 bales of cotton annually. With the Midland as an outlet the Trojans are sure that they will have the est town in Alabama within a short time. The people are still talking here about the enise of THE CONSTITUTION in getting the terprise of THE CONSTITUTION in getting the first news of the Dothen riot, right under the nose of Montgomery, and sending the first news of that affair to the Alabama capital the morn-ing after the fight, in the telegraphic columns of the great Atlanta daity.

The stockholders left Tuesday morning on their special train for Bainbridge and inter-mediate towns on the Midland.

AUGUSTA AND WEST FLORIDA. Two Hundred and Twenty Miles, Augusta to

Thomasville. In the railroad statistics for '89, published in THE CONSTITUTION a few days ago, it will be remembered that Georgia led all the southern states, and with the one exception of a new state, Washington-more miles of new road were built in Georgia than in any other state

This year the southern states will show up even better than last year, and Georgia will lead not only the southern states, but all the Executive Committee—Jesse Thompson, J. P. Verdery and F. B. Pope.

The road will be 220 miles in length, and will pass through the following rich and thickly populated counties: Richmond, Burke, Jefferson, Johnson, Emanuel, Laurens, Telfair, Dodge, Irwin, Berrien, Colquit and Thomas; and $2,500,000 will be necessary to build and equip the road. The financial part of the enterprise is assured. Contracts have been made to begin grading within thirty days. Work will be pushed shead rapidly and it is confidently expected that the road will be completed in eighteen months.

The East Tennessee is sending out a very pretty calendar for '90. There are two, the "King of Hearts," The former is a little son of Mr. B. W. ter town's giving terminal facilities. There is a disposition to take it for granted that the road must come whether the terminal facilities are given or not, and the road may not go to Thomasville after all.

Wholesale changes are going on in the South Carolina rallroad offices. Resignations are coming in to Receiver Chamberlin every day, and accepted as they come in. The latest are those of Colonel J. H. Averhill, superintendent, and Mr. D. C. Allen, the general passenger agent. Other changes are expected daily.

Washington, Ga., is to have a road tapping the G. C. & N. at or near Eiberton. General Hoke, of the G., C. & N., has given every assurance to the people of Washington that after the main line of the road is completed and the business all settled, he will meet their efforts to procure the branch, with all the encouragement possible. The citi. _ns of Washington are united in their work.

Today at 11 o'clock a special train will come m over the R. & D. with seventeen coaches and over one thousand negro emigrants from North Carolina, and leave over the G. P. for Arkansas and Texas.

NEW YEAR'S DAY AND HOW IT WAS OBSERVED IN ATLANTA.

Government Offices and the Banks Close, But the Observance of the Day Publicly, Generally Disregarded.

New Year day in Atlanta was as uneventful as it was disagreeable. So marked was the latter that, for a point, it might be termed the

There was no public observance whatever except the closing of the banks and short hours at the government offices. All the business houses were open and attending to the usual trade, the courts—that portion not adjourned for the holidays—were in session, and the city offices and officers observed the usual work-day

Among the negro population the day was observed to some extent. Not as New Years, however, but as a day designated for the annual celebration of the emancipation of their race. All the negro military organizations turned out and a regular jolly time was had by the brother in black at the Loyd street church. A limited amount of receiving and calling was done, but on not near such an extended scale as in previous years. The most notable public reception was that by the Ladies' auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian association. Then the reception was splendidly carried out, the handsome parlors being crowded all evening with a happy throng of members and their henceforth and forever. This swearing-off business is about the only thing left to make New Year's day an event in the holiday season. Almost all the other forms of observances have ceased to exist, but as long as January 1st rolls round, just that often will mortal man—and woman, too—resolve and remotivation and resolve to quit his meanness. It takes this to make a perfect New Year. Without it, there would be no occasion for the annual conscience clearing, or yearly reiteration of good purposes.

clearing, or yearly reiteration of good purposes.

IT IS THE FAD.

Then it is the fad. Stand not upon the order of the swearing, but swear off! If you swore off last year, but didn't stick, you may be more successful this time. Yesterday resolutions of all sorts were made, each judividual having one or more peculiarly applicable to himself. The category of swear-off embraced everything from using slang to an over intimacy with John Barleycorn. How many of them will serve the same purpose again in '91, remains to be seen. Some of them had already been vamped and re-vamped, and were resurrected for the occasion as in the natural order of things.

The latter is applicable to business men, for the close of the past decade makes a change in figures that occurs but once in a century. It is the displacing of one of the "eighths" we have been accustomed to using for ten years past, putting in its stead a "nine." To business men who ave a stock of printed stationery on hand this may cause a little annoyance, for many will neg lect for a few days at least to scratch out the last figure eight on the date lines of their note heads, and the consequence may read 1880. Of course they thought they were correct, and that their letters were dated 1890 properly. But the habit of ten years is so strong that the custom of substituting but one figure will stick for a few days at least. So if you get a letter dated ten years ago, don't be surprised, for maybe you have sent one or more off in that shape yourself. If you have an old supply of letter heads, the only way to prevent such errors is to be careful to cross out one of the "eights," then write two figures instead of one, as has been done for ten years.

"These two "eights" have stood side by side The latter is applicable to business men, for

These two "eights" have stood side by side

These two "eights" have stood side by side for a decade, the changing year never altering their positions. But they are now of the past, and it will be just one hundred years before the world will have the privilege of their successor, another double date—1990.

But if there was one class that appreciated the New Year it was the school children and students. To them it was the finale of a season of recreation and enjoyment. Today many of them will be on their way back to school-room and studies, filled with recollections of happy holidays, and wishing only that they could last forever.

The Negroes Celebrate.

The celebration of emancipation day by the negroes yesterday was a great event among the clored citizens. The exercises were held at the Loyd street Methodist church, occupying most of the afternoon. Besides the military, delegations from the various colored societies were in the prothe various colored societies were in the pro-cession, which marched through the streets to the church, headed by a brass band. In the procession were the Georgia Cadets, com-manded by Moses H. Bentley; the Washing-ton Guards, commanded by Thornton Turner; the Governor's Volunteers, in charge of Jack-son McHenry, and the Fulton Guards, com-manded by J. T. Grant.

At the church the following programme was gone through:

Oration, Rev. E. R. Carter.
Benediction, Rev. C. L. Bradwell.

Before the ceremonies closed Smith Easley introduced a series of resolution touching on the race conflict of the past few days, which were adopted after referring to the trouble at Jesup and Barnwell, saying "their subsequent strocities are chargeable beyond doubt to the cruelty, barbarity, and lawlessness of white ruffians," and that "the killing of Flind in the vicinity of his home, and the ruthless murder of Hopps and Jackson while in jail are blots upon the face of civilization and outrages against humanity," and discussing such matters generally, the resolutions conclude:

1. Resolved, That we invoke the moral sentiment of all good people everywhere to join with us in condemning the recent murder of colored men confined in jail, charged with crime, at Jesup, Ga.; and Barnwell, S. C.

2. Resolved, That we implore the white pulpit of this state, as one of the mediums through which the moral sentiment of the best white people is expressed, to denounce, in the name of Christ, these crimes against human nature.

3. Resolved. That we call upon the white press, another organ of the best element of that race, to denounce these outrages, in the name of the constitution of this state, and of the United States.

4. Resolved that we counsel our people to further patience, forbearance and long suffering and advise them to no resistance, except such as may be defensive and defensible.

Thinks the Winter Will Be a Normal One and Gives His Reasons. The best weather prophet, perhaps, is the home weather prophet, away up at the roof of the Traders' bank building. He prophesies thus: "A normal winter, average temperature, with a few cold spells, but generally a very pleasant winter. The present cold snap will break up with rain, probably." "The remainder of the winter isn't going to be unusally cold then-"

"Not at all." "-because last winter was mild, and the one be-fore, and this winter, too?"

"Not at all. The way to tell is this. We keep the temperature for several years, and thus arrive at a normal temperature for each day in the year, at a normal temperature for each day in the year, About August we were over 300 degrees behind the normal—the summer was not so hot as usual. We predicted that by the end of the year we would be about even again; in other words, that we would have a warmer November and December than usual. Sure enough, we are now only about eighteen degrees behind the normal. The probabilities now are that we will jog alemy for the rest of the year pretty close to the normal. That means a good deal to the poor folks. Cold, weather is expensive, if nothing more.

Warden Hunter's charity fund is a very light one, he says.

"If a cold snap were to come on nnexpectedly," he added, "the run on my bank would break it in short order. I don't see what good cold snaps do anyhow."

THE MACON CIRCUIT VACANT. Speculation at the State House as to Judge

Gustin's Successor.

Before Judge Guatin's communication was filed the applicants for the vacant judgeship began to ar-rive. First cam: Mr. B. W. Patterson, representing Mr. Walter B. Hill, and a little later H. M. Harde-

Mr. Walter B. Hill, and a little later H. M. Hardeman called and aunounced that Hon. W. D. Notingham wanted the position. Neither of the delegates were able to be of any great service to their candidate, as Governor Gordon has not yet returned from his farm in Taylor county.

The officers about the capitol discussed the subject very thoroughly and a general conclusion was reached that possibly neither of the candidates who had declared the nestves would get the place. The law does not even require the appointment of a resident of the circuit, although precedent has established such a custom.

Great latitude is given the gr vernor and until he returns and announces his choice not even the best guessers about the capitol can say with any certainty who will be the next judge of the Macon circuit.

A FAMILY IN JAIL

THE REMARKABLE STORY OF THE

Father, Mother, Sons, Daughter and Relatives All Behind the Bars After Years of Crime Committed of Various Degrees.

The Bone family is behind the bars. The dving year did one righteons deed for Atlanta when, in the last codicil of its will and testament, it placed this family out of the

Yesterday moraing, just before the coroner's jury adjourned, one of the most dramatic scenes in the criminal records of Atlanta was

The entire family was brought face to face with the twelve men who were to give the verdict as to their guilt or innocence of the crowning crime of the story of iniquity that has marked the career of this remarkable family.

They were ranged in seats along the railing in front of the recorder's desk. Old man Jim Bone wore the same expression-half cunning, half stupid—that marked his features during the entire investigation. By his side sat Jessie Bone, his daughter, and near her sat Ella Twilly, the girl who turned state's evidence and saved herself.

Old Mrs. Bone, and her sister, Mrs. Buckalew, were on old man Bone's right with his little son Lem between; and beyond them was Jim, the eldest of the lot.

Ella Twilly's actions showed how completely terrorized she had been, for she glanced nervously around as she repeated the story that implicated the other members of the family in the dark crime which the old man had confessed to being the

IN THE BOSOM OF HIS FAMILY the old man began to repeat the tragic story of the killing. As he began, his daughter turned her piercing black eyes full upon him, and the expression that came over her dead white face was one of inexpressible scorn and contempt. For the time she seemed transinto a veritable fury, and looked a though she could have torn him limb from

But she betrayed no emotion otherwise, Never a word or the quiver of a lip indicated her feelings, and when he ended she simply glanced around at the assembled crowd, like a caged animal ready to resent every word or

Mrs. Bone, hardened by many a petty crime, and by such suffering as callous hearts like hers could feel, kept her face in her handker-chief, and old Mrs. Buckalew bent forward and sat dry-eyed throughout the rehearsal.

Jim and Lem both appeared as indifferent as they ever did when brought before the re-corder for the violation of some city ordinance. But Busbee's face was a study. He had tried to play the fool all night, and now that that boded ill to his future, he writhed and squirmed in a way that would have made the leading portrait for one of the immortal word paintings of Charles Dickens. It was a grotesque and un usual scene, and even the jurors breathed freer when the seance was en led.

A NERVOUS THRILL passed over the breathless assembly, who had been hanging on every word and look, when they heard the confused tramp of many feet coming up the stairway.

Men in the audience half rose in their seats, and jurors turned their faces anxiously toward the door, for all thought that the news of the first confession had gone abroad and that the avengers were at hand.

Tramp, tramp, tramp, they came up the stairway, butas the policeman at the door seemed unconscious of any impending danger, a general sigh of relief went up from the

"It is only the evening watch coming off of duty," cried one who was accustomed to that unearthly uproar.

SENT TO JAIL. Yesterday the family was sent to jail.

With one exception. That was Chalmers Bone, the seven-year old boy; youngest and nearst innocent of the family.

The police have decided long ago that all the good Bones were dead Bones. But this little fellow is too young to be very wicked. He was left alone in the home when Mrs. Bone was carried to the stationhouse, and he slept sweetly, although the house was lonely and dark, and all the doors locked around him. When the coroner's jury made a vertice the When the coroner's jury made a verdict, the police sent for him, and he was kindly taken rge by the officers of the department Old man Bone, Jim and Lem with Busbee, were assigned to cells in Fulton county jail, along side the other prisoners, but the women were carried upstairs to the female apartments

None of them expressed any particular regret, and all seemed to take it as a simple matter of course. The males mixed and mingled with the other prisoners, with many of whom they were well acquainted. The women seemed contented, and did not offer any expostulation whatever.

THE FAMILY HISTORY.

In 1832, James C. Bone was born in Clarke county, Georgia. After he grew to manhood, he married Clara Busbee, of South Carolina. In 1853 he came to Atlanta, and has lived here ever since, rearing a brood that has proved the terror of Rhodes street and the vexation of the police. The old man ran as conductor on the Georgia railroad for sixteen years. He served as baggagemaster for five:

conductor on the Georgia railroad for sixteen years. He served as baggagemaster for five; and in his old age has been a watchman at various crossings in the city.

He looks all that he is.

His face has a sort of hyena expression, which is built up by the furtive glance of his eyes that set at angles in his weatherbeaten face.

All the children inherit those eyes like photographs from one negative. The louter corners are elevated above the inner ones, giving them the bird-of-prey expression peculiar to the race.

Heretofore the old man has not been a peace breaker, but he has only kept in the back-ground while the younger members cut up their devilment. heir devilment. Old Mrs. Bone is fifty years old, and a tigress

Old Mrs. Bone is fifty years old, and a tigress in disposition. She has proven herself the cherishing mother of the toughest brood that ever infested Atlanta. She is as familiar with profane expressions as she is with the faces of the policemen. She has been a habitue of the recorder's court for many years, and not only has she encouraged her own children in vice, but inculcated into every unfortunate youngster that came in contact with her, the same principles.

Her sister, Mrs. Buckalew, is five years her junior, and is an invalid. She has but one child, and that is a son who is in New York. THE ELDEST SON is James H. Bone, a man of thirty. His record is marked in emphatic letters on the police records of Atlanta. Ella Twilly was betrayed by him, and brought to his father's home, records of Atlanta. Ella Twilly was betrayed by him, and brought to his father's home, where she became a sort of drudge for the rest of the family.

Lem Bone is a newsboy, and has been identified with more petty offenser than almost any boy of his age in Atlanta. He is fifteen in years, and ages in iniquity.

W. B. Busbee is a brother-in-law of the family. His red moustache partially shading the long protruding upper teeth, give him a rather ridiculous look, but he has shown himself as cunning as he is ill-favored.

Jessie Bone is seventeen years old, now, but many people remember her as an apple vender, in rags and tatters, who haunted the streets of Atlanta but a few years ago. She was notorious as being the roughest ragamuffin in the city, and was the tease and torment of the various places of public resort. Her sharp tongue was pointed with obscenity and profanity, and many a dignified gentleman has been thrown off his balauce by some cutting retort from her. For two or three years she has been lost sight of, and people fouldy boped that they were rid of her forever. She grew to womanhood, and with no abatement of her wicked ways, she became learned in the deeper science of iniquity. One look at her bloodless face and those jet black eyes, with their wild expression, would convince any one of her character and ability to resort to any means to gain the desired ends. LAST BUT NOT LEAST is Julius Bone, the slickest little rascal in Atlanta. He is the boy who but a few weeks ago watched a merchant open his safe, caught and remembered the combination, and at dead of night returned and opened it. A long volume, with copious illustrations, could be written on this thirteen year-old alone.

THE GRAND JURY will begin an investigation of the case Friday. If true bills are found the trial of the criminals will begin next week, and their fate will soon be decided.

The Women Praise B. B. B.

The suffering of women certainly awakeus the sympathy of every true philanthropist. Their best friend, however, is B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm). Send to Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga., for proofs. H. L. Cassidy, Konnesaw. Ga., writes: "Three bottles of B. B. B. cured my wife of scrolula." Mrs. R. M. Laws, Zalaba, Fla., writes: "I have never used anything to equal B. B. B. Mrs. C. H. Gay, Rocky Mount, N. C., writes: "Not a day for fifteen years was I free from headache. B. B. entirely relieved me. I feel like another

'My wife was in bad health for eight years. Five doctors and many patent medicines had done her n good, Six bottles of B. B. B. cured her."

Miss S. Tomlinson, Atlanta, Ga., writes: "Fo years I suffered with rheumatism, caused by kidney trouble and indigestion. I also was feeble and nervous. B. B. B. relieved me at once, although several other medicines had tailed." Rev. J. M. Richardson, Clarkston, Ark:, writes: 'My wife suffered twelve years from rheumatism and female complaint. A lady member of my church had been cured by B. B. B. She persuaded my wife to try it, who now says there is nothing like B. B., as it quickly gave her relief." No Fight in Ours.
